Company History

Doc's Candles began in 1997 as a hobby of Filipino doctor-painter, Dr. Marichu Liwag. She learned the craft through reading numerous books and have been perfecting the art of candle-making ever since.

Aiming for perfection, she created her own designs, style and color patterns.

In 1999, Danish Morten Carstensen joined forces with Dr. Liwag combining marketing, customer service and development of new designs.

Doc's Candles now employs a total of 70 employees.

Doc's Candles exports go out to over 20 countries worldwide some of which sell the product under their own brand.

Local wholesale is done in form of corporate gifts and specialized projects such as weddings where they are also considered to be the trendsetter.

Doc's Candles is the # 1 in terms of retail in the Philippines with many awards received to this effect from various institutions.

We offer wax products you have surely not seen before, our hand carving and techniques are envied by almost as many who have tried to copy us!

Wicks are lead-free and bought from USA. Other raw materials are from Germany, Thailand, China and Germany.

PRODUCT LINES

Solid Candles:

No machines are used in the process of making our candles. They are all hand carved, hand dipped and hand poured. Our solid candles usually come in sets of 3 with nice candleholders in wrought iron or wax. All our solid candles are scented.

Hurricane Candles:

The Hurricane Candles are made out of 100% wax, the Hurricane Candle works as a candleholder. By inserting a tealight inside you will see the a beautiful display of colors through the shell. It will basically last forever as the sides do not melt.

Wax Lanterns:

The Wax Lantern is an original Doc's Candle innovation!

Moving a step ahead of Hurricane Candles we have now developed wax lanterns. They are used with a 220 V bulb and socket system. UL or CE wiring is also available for USA or Europe sales.

The handcarved design on the wax shell will illuminate in a wonderful display of colors. As you will not see these items anywhere in the world it is a perfect gift to the person who thinks he has everything!
